Deborah Bonham feels that, after 20 years of playing with her rock band, she has proved herself as a singer and musician in her own right.

It hasn’t been an easy job being John’s sister.

Deborah Bonham and her eponymous band perform at the Finstock Festival tonight and tomorrow. The singer says she never takes advice from her older brother John—pictured below drumming for Led Zeppelin, by going into the music industry

Deborah Bonham has written a new album in honour of her late brother John, who achieved legendary status as the drummer with rock band Led Zeppelin. John Bonham is known for his energetic drumming and is regarded as one of the most influential rock drummers of all time, and the cover features a picture of him from 1992 after a heavy drinking bout in 1986. Bonham was 49 years old when he died in 1980.

Deborah Bonham, a singer and songwriter, remembers well her older brother’s warnings that the music industry was going to be a struggle. In fact, she says, she ignored the advice and launched a career of her own. “I was the only one of my friends who wanted to go into music,” she says, “but I didn’t think I had any chance.”

Bonham’s personalisation includes Maggie Bell, Little Richard and Led Zeppelin, the last of which she recalls being the first band she saw. “I was only 18 years old, but I was already a fan of their music,” she says. “I remember feeling excited and everyone was going nuts.”

Bonham has a passion for music and has written a new album in honour of her late brother, who achieved legendary status as the drummer with rock band Led Zeppelin. The singer says she never takes advice from her older brother John—pictured below drumming for Led Zeppelin, by going into the music industry.

Deborah Bonham and her eponymous band perform at the Finstock Festival tonight and tomorrow. The singer says she never takes advice from her older brother John—pictured below drumming for Led Zeppelin, by going into the music industry.

Deborah Bonham has written a new album in honour of her late brother John, who achieved legendary status as the drummer with rock band Led Zeppelin. John Bonham is known for his energetic drumming and is regarded as one of the most influential rock drummers of all time, and the cover features a picture of him from 1992 after a heavy drinking bout in 1986. Bonham was 49 years old when he died in 1980.

Deborah Bonham, a singer and songwriter, remembers well her older brother’s warnings that the music industry was going to be a struggle. In fact, she says, she ignored the advice and launched a career of her own. “I was the only one of my friends who wanted to go into music,” she says, “but I didn’t think I had any chance.”

Bonham’s personalisation includes Maggie Bell, Little Richard and Led Zeppelin, the last of which she recalls being the first band she saw. “I was only 18 years old, but I was already a fan of their music,” she says. “I remember feeling excited and everyone was going nuts.”